

Talk of London

LADY ANNE WELLESLEY'S wedding to the Hon. David Rhys was unquestionably yesterday's outstanding social event...

Both the church and the Dowager Lady Gleaner's house in Hill Street were packed to suffocation...

It reminds me of the wall game at Eton, said Colonel the Hon. Arthur Brodrick...

And, while Lord Bakkeres and Lady Sarna James only just managed to find seats in the church...

ST. GEORGE'S, Hanover-square, though it was once so fashionable, is not altogether a convenient church for weddings...

I have before now seen bride and bridegroom parted, on the very threshold of their married life...

UNUSUAL hymns were sung at this wedding. One was the militant "Onward! Christian Soldiers"...

I AM reminded of the occasion in London when Chaliapine fell foul of a famous composer during the performance of an opera...

THE chief objections were a number of distinguished Parisians who had been persuaded to take part in the film...

THE EARL OF HADDINGTON rides his own horse, Merriment IV, in the Grand National to-day.

THE things that interest me most are old books and ancient newspapers. It occurred to me on Wednesday last that not only Britain but many other parts of the world will to-day have only one topic for conversation.

CHALIAPINE jumped to his feet, shrugged his great shoulders violently, and roared in recitative: "It is not bearable. It is not possible for a conductor to direct 'Boris' with his eyes on his score instead of on me-me, Chaliapine!"

HIS final exit (at the rehearsal) was made to the refrain—"I will not stand it. I will go home. Yes! I will go away on the night train to Paris. I will be at home for breakfast. There will be no 'Boris.' I am going back to my wife."

I AM reminded of the occasion in London when Chaliapine fell foul of a famous composer during the performance of an opera. So obvious to the audience was the feud that Chaliapine found it necessary to send for the Press next day to explain, hand on heart, that he loved the composer like a brother...

AN amusing letter from my post-bag yesterday—"I think you at a month out. 'The most brilliant sea-on since the war' generally appears in print about April 25. The sentence usually seen about now is—'This is to be a wonder week of sport.'"

ON Easter Tuesday we expect to see a report that "the oldest porter at Waterloo said that in his experience he had never seen such a crowd of holiday-makers."

THE half-hour that provides me with the maximum of interest is that immediately preceding the start. That is when the atmosphere of Antree is positively electrical.

THE Earl of Haddington is not an easy race to follow. It is long drawn out, it is frequently painful, but one of its chief peculiarities is that it is rarely exciting until towards the end.

I HOPE so, for I am free to confess that I am no expert reader. The men with glasses to their eyes who mumble facts in the Press box are a race apart, and I sometimes think that a lifetime must be spent before one is able to discern that the colour in front is light red, and not a dark shade of red.

LET me get down to a few facts. The first Grand National was run in 1839. At that time, and for over forty years afterwards, a few of the fields were grass, but many more were heavy plough.

IN the first year there were seventeen starters, and the winner was Lottery, of whom it is recorded that he jumped thirty-three feet over the last fence.

THE time was 14mins 53secs. In 1843 the race became a handicap, not exactly a system, but it is marvellously like one—I shall have each-way bets on Egremont, Forbra, and Merriment IV.

IF either is first past the post, or even second or third, remember that the winner of last year's Derby was April the First, that the first two winners at Lincoln on Wednesday were Arran Beg and Caress, and that the first and third in this week's Lincoln Handicap were Dorigen and Varsity Express.

The Daily Sportlight

and four years later the name was changed to the "Grand National Handicap Steeplechase."

When it was finally decided there were only a handful of people on the course, and the rider of the winner was William Archer, father of the much more famous Fred.

In 1862 a jockey named James Wynne was killed, but it was not until twenty-two years later that the course was railed in on the inside from start to finish.

Two circuits of the present Aintree course represent nearly four and a half miles. So much for the details.

THE commonest saying about the National is that it is usually won by a horse that once pulled a cab or a milk cart.

Whether there are any such in today's event is not within my knowledge, but I know, with millions more, that picking the winner is on a par with crashing the gate of a king's abode.

I do not expect to make money this afternoon with my modest wagers, but because of something quaint that has been told me—it is not exactly a system, but it is marvellously like one—I shall have each-way bets on Egremont, Forbra, and Merriment IV.

READ WHAT FAMOUS DOCTORS & DENTISTS SAY ABOUT BREAD & FLOUR

Dr. Alett Baldwin (before the Royal Society of Medicine) "The use of fine white bread and flour is one of the chief causes of degeneration in the physique and health of civilized communities."

Sir Harry Baldwin, Surgeon-Dentist to the King "Some people think that sugar is the principal cause of the decay of the teeth, but I think that the great delinquent is white flour..."

Dr. S. Henning Beltrage, Chairman of the Food Committee of the New Health Society "The absence in white bread of Vitamin-B and 'roughage' contained in wholemeal flour is responsible for a vast amount of digestive disorders."

Sir Bruce Bruce-Porter "If a mother will eat wholemeal bread and other natural vegetable foods the blood will have the necessary salts available for developing the child."

Sir James O'Brien-Brown, M.D., D.Sc. "The poor should be taught that if they want their children to grow up strong and lusty—if they want them to have sound teeth—they must supply them with mineral matters in their food..."

J. T. Hall, L.D.S., author of 'Our Teeth and How to Keep Them' "Wholemeal bread should be eaten regularly... Wholemeal bread is rich in Vitamin-B..."

Dr. W. Ansell Lane, G.B., M.A. "Those who urge that white flour products are useful foods do so on the ground that the components contained in wholemeal and absent from white flour—components which are essential to life and health—can be provided in other forms of diet."

Dr. G. W. Saleby "The public demands white flour. This simply means that the public demands the removal from the grain of everything but the white starch..."

Dr. Charles Symonds, Consulting Surgeon to Guy's Hospital "White flour is thus an unwholesome food..."

Leonard Williams, M.D., author of 'The Science and Art of Living, etc.' "Stomachic wholemeal bread is one of the means of maintaining health..."

Dr. E. A. Hornbrough "Wholemeal is the best possible food and the best possible 'Wholesome' Allowance..."
